Isn't Baseball A Bit Dangerous?

An American Y. M. C. A. secretary in London went to Putney to see a cricket game. His uniform attracted attention and he asked about cricket. Then a Britisher asked about baseball. On a page of his notebook the American sketched a diamond and described the game remarking, "It's a great game. You boys ought to try it out."

"We'd like to," spoke up a rising young cricketer, "but isn't it rather dangerous?"

Bears Lose 2-1

The San Jose Bears were given an honorable defeat at San Leandro Sunday by a 1-0 score, made chiefly by the ump who was even repudiated by many of the winners. The next game is with the Newkirkers at Santa Clara grounds Sunday afternoon.

There are seven more games up on schedule before the big championship series begins and Manager Bradford expects to pull in on that series with a lead.

A Letter from England

Following is an interesting letter received by Mrs. C. H. Whitman from her son, George, who is at present at a hospital in England.

Woodgate, England, July 5, 1913.

Dear Ones at Home:

Hurrah for the glorious 4th.

I was down to London and saw the (U. S.) Army and Navy baseball game 2 to 1 in the Navy's favor the greatest game I ever saw in my life.

The King and Queen were there to celebrate with us, also Princess Mary, Queen Alexandra and lots more of the Royal family. But the Queen is sure a Queen she has the sweetest face I ever saw and you could see all the fine qualities of her nature just beaming in her countenance and I just felt in love with her; no wonder the English people adore her so. I was within just a few feet of them in fact could have almost touched them with my hand. I just happened to be standing at the gate when they came out of grounds.

Many Americans who saw the ball game said it was the finest game they ever saw but the cricket grounds at Chelsea are smaller than our grounds usually are. Many English Australians are very enthusiastic over it and when two Australian officers noticed that I knew the game kept me plied with questions and made me think of Mr. W. with their persistences. But before the game was over they were able to understand the plays and were very appreciative and thanked me for my information and both shook hands with me. They are most like Americans that you meet over here. After the game I had a feed and then went to the St. James Theatre where there was a complimentary performance for U. S. Troops. I, of course, was in the Hospital Uniform (Blue) but I am sure an American yet and the man on the door said to me you better go down and sit with the officers in front, but I had met a New York chap and I preferred to sit with him. We had fine seats too. The Programme consisted of American and English top liners that were playing in London.

Mary Anderson and E. H. Southern gave the Balcony Scene in Romeo and Juliet.

Mary Anderson gave a fine selection and Southern recited several appropriate poems. Ethel Levy, the famous Coon Shouter sang, "Welcome, U. S. A."

Geo. Mozart, the comedian and vaudeville artist, gave his wonderful impersonations; a famous star of the Metropolitan Opera sang several selections. Her name I have forgotten but she was some artist.

Geo. Robey, the London favorite, gave several side splitting songs. Eva Tanguay also sang and in fact I was simply charmed with the whole show.

I forgot to say that I got in London just in time to hear the bells of St. Paul's Cathedral ring at 11:15, the first time since the war so I understand.

July 5th was the King and Queen's silver wedding which was celebrated in Westminster Abbey but, of course I couldn't go. I will now tell you more fully of Woodgate park, Epsom.

We have here 4,000 convalescent patients and the grounds overlook the Famous Race course where the English derby was always run before the war and every time I step out of the front door of my hut I see the grand stand and paddocks.

The Horton Hospital which is between 1 1/2 and 2 miles from Woodgate has as high as 7 thousand cases at a time and the Manor 1500 at once, so there are about 12,000 soldiers here in Blues altogether. Last night I saw Douglas Fairbanks in the Movies in "Flirting with fate" which was taken in Niles and San Jose, gives views of First street, Second street, the Business men's club, the Episcopal church and J. H. Henry's home.

May be I was not surprised to be taken home in so short a time. We have a fine Cinema here and get all the best stuff that comes over.

Tonight we had Mary Pickford in "A Romance of the Redwoods." Well it's getting dark (9:45) so will stay good night.

Love to all,

GEO. DAVIS.

Off For Training

Henry Gullick will depart Tuesday for the government artisan training school at Logan, Utah. After several months' training in special work he will be placed with an army division as a mechanic, electrician, or other tradesman as the case may be. Six years ago he came here from England and the last three years he has been "chief cook and bottle washer" at the Orange Grove Farm, where he will be greatly missed.

SHEEP REQUIRE LITTLE CARE

Big Value of Wool and Mutton Gives Boost to Industry—Business Now in New Light.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The development of the sheep industry will contribute materially to the nation's food and clothing supply. War conditions have brought about a renewed interest in sheep growing in the United States and the high value of both wool and mutton will place the farm sheep business in a new light.

The mutton sheep is a necessary instrument in highly intensive and self-supporting agriculture. The still more intensive use of land in farms, an effort to secure the more economical use of every acre, every facility, and available labor, all of which are necessary under the present conditions, necessitate the general inclusion of sheep in our system of mixed farming and live stock production. This gives the raising of sheep a new appeal in older farming areas.

The main factor in determining the cost of other animal products is the value of grain and mill feeds; pasture and roughage are important, but both beef and pork require a considerable use of concentrated feeds. The production of lambs and mutton require a very much smaller proportion of fat and therefore a smaller use of grain than is required in these other meat animals. Sheep are able to get a good portion of their feed from rough, permanent grass pasture and at the same time keep it clean of weeds. This increases rather than decreases the cattle-carrying capacity of the pasture. As sheep require comparatively little of the owner's labor, the labor cost per dollar's worth of wool or lambs is lower than in any other farm animal product. While the labor required in raising sheep is not heavy it is continuous and somewhat different from that required in the care of other stock.

Many of the obstacles that have hindered the progress of sheep raising in intensive farming districts have been or are being overcome. The competition given sheep growing on farms by the production of sheep on lower-priced range land is being removed. A second but only temporary obstacle to a quick increase in sheep production lies in the fact that comparatively few farmers are as well qualified to care for sheep as for other classes of stock. The needs and habits of sheep differ from those of horses, and swine, but present no problems that will not be met by interested study and observations supported by satisfactory returns.

Good teams mean more to the up-to-date farmer than is generally believed. Without good teams it is a very difficult matter to do good farming. But at present prices farmers may hesitate to buy heavy draft horses and mules, notwithstanding the fact that they are after all economical. It would be a good plan to get some heavy mares and raise colts for sale or to take the place of lighter animals and old teams on the farm.

UNCLE SAM'S BIG WORK IN FRANCE

Gigantic Things Being Accomplished by Men From United States.

SPEED ASTONISHES FRENCH

Immense Structures Spring Like Magic From Ground—Troops Slated for Three Months' Training Go Into Service.

With the American Army in France, Americans in France who are familiar with the gigantic things Uncle Sam is doing here sometimes wonder if the people who are subscribing for Liberty loans and giving their full moral support to the national government fully realize what their money and their support are making possible over here in France, writes Don Martin in the New York Herald.

The rule of the army is that Americans must not boast. In simpler, backwoods language, Americans must saw wood and let the other fellow do the talking. Consequently the folks back home get only fragmentary pictures of what Uncle Sam, three thousand miles away, is accomplishing.

Forests in places have been cleared away to make room for sidings. Immense structures have come almost like magic out of the ground. Railway tracks have been laid so swiftly that one could almost see them extend themselves. To see a thousand hardy, eager young Americans working in an isolated part of France is a sight to be encountered many times any day. And the work has just begun!

Building Lines of Communication.

Only a few weeks ago while driving along a well-known highway of eastern France I saw young engineers surveying along a distance of perhaps twenty miles. They were young college men. A few days later they were thirty miles further along the road, and where they had been were gangs of men digging holes and unloading coils of wire from trucks. Next day tamarack poles were scattered along the route. What I saw along this 50-mile strip was merely a duplication of what was going on in every 50-mile sector all the way from the coast to the front line. Now there is a fully-equipped American telephone line.

This is just an incident in the enormous program of organization and preparation which the United States is carrying out. If we lack perhaps in the long military experience of some of the other nations, no one can accuse Americans of lacking in quick organization and achievement in construction work. France is marveling at the speed with which our engineers and their bands of men have progressed with their mammoth tasks. She knows now, although she really never doubted, that the United States is in the war to a finish and is determined to prosecute it with the same vigor she has every other conflict she has ever engaged in.

American soldiers, as Secretary Baker predicted, have been pouring into France for several weeks. They are distributed in villages where until now no American was ever seen. One has but to see the gigantic barracks being erected here and there along the line of communications to realize that stupendous things are in the immediate future. At one point thirty one-story frame buildings, each 100 feet in length, were built in two weeks. Now they are filled with soldiers going through intensive training for service at the front.

So, as the Americans are gradually coming to realize that somewhere back home there has been wonderful speed and efficiency in getting men across the Atlantic, the people of France are beginning to understand that Uncle Sam has a vast army here already. How much of it will participate in the great battle which is still going on, no one can foretell. It is known only that American troops have been moving about recently and that many troops which were slated for three months' additional training behind the battle lines were found to be in a state of such perfection that they were ready to meet any emergency.

French Rejoice; Americans in Line.

Americans were sent to the big front not long after the battle began. Official announcement to that effect was made. Publication of the fact caused a feeling of exultation to sweep over France. Everywhere one could hear the French saying:

"America is now in the line!"

Americans had been in the front line long before that, but not in the front line of the biggest battle of the war. The French newspapers commented widely on the matter and later gave great prominence to the statement of General Pershing that anything America has is at the disposal of France for what use she wishes to make of it.

This was regarded by France as the most generous and patriotic offer ever made by one nation to another. The people of France are overjoyed. They never feared the result of the big battle now going on. Possibly they worried sometimes about the capacity of a nation bled as France has been bled to continue indefinitely if years were required to give the Germans the licking they deserve. But now they are flushed with optimism and confidence, and they are swelled with pride and a new love for America.

U.S. NEGRO'S IDEA BEATS THE TEUTS

Conceived in Georgia Village It Bears Fruit in No Man's Land.

DEAD FOX AIDS AND ABETS

Now Abraham Lincoln Davis Goes Hungry to Feed Bunch of German Messenger Dogs Lured Into Trench.

With the American Army in France, —Of the two threads out of which this yarn is spun one started in a little village situated about 16 miles inland from Savannah, Ga., and the other started in the office of the German high command in Berlin. In the Georgia village—I don't recall the name of it now—a pickaninny developed the idea that the best kind of a dog to chase a rabbit was a long-legged dog. Likewise in the office of the German high command there developed the idea that a dog, having considerable intelligence, would make a better messenger than a German soldier on the battlefield, and also that if a dog had long legs he would be a faster messenger dog than a messenger dog with short legs.

Threads Come Together. So the threads of the story started far apart and stretched a long way to the French front, where the erstwhile pickaninny is a first-class private in the army of his Uncle Samuel, and where a short ways off the German military dogs carry messages back and forth to the Boche pillboxes and advanced posts. Abraham (Lincoln) Davis—his pals all call him Ike—has dodged a lot of German bullets and gas grenades.

Ike hadn't been in the trenches long before he began to hear about the German messenger dogs. Every now and then, through a peephole in the top of

When Germany Tells the Truth

Peace Terms Given Her Own People Vastly Different From Those of the Rest of the World

When Germany is talking for publication—through the kaiser or his hand-picked chancellor—she speaks a great desire for a "liberal peace." Conquest and tribute are the farthest things from her mind, she says.

When Germany is talking to her own people she tells the truth about the sort of peace she wants. Her real terms of peace—the terms the kaiser and his chancellor promise the soldiers they are going to get when they win the war—were found in a trench taken by the allies the other day, and they are quite different from the terms advertised.

They were all written out plain and emphatic, and among other things they proclaim that Belgium must remain under German military, economic and political domination. Of course that isn't conquest.

Courland, Lithuania, Livonia and Esthonia are to be "colonized" by Germany. Neither is that conquest.

Liberty of the seas is to be established, a "made in Germany" liberty by which the limit of the world's shipping is to be established, giving Germany and her friends—Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria, 17,800,000 tons, and all the rest of the world—America, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and all—a total of 10,900,000 tons. Nothing like world domination in that; just "liberality."

Roumania must "place at the disposal of Germany 1,800,000 tons of petroleum." Certainly that isn't tribute; just friendliness.

And for America and the other allies this: "Those nations which attacked peaceful Germany must pay all war charges in raw materials, ships, ready money and territorial concessions, leaving Germany with only five billions national debt." Tribute? Certainly not. Just a testimonial of appreciation of Germany's greatness and goodness—a forty or fifty billion dollar testimonial.

And there are still people in this country who pretend to believe Germany wishes to make peace on "liberal" terms.

Use More Hominy

Several Kinds of This Real American Food

Americans! Have we forgotten some of the best foods we once knew? Are you using hominy? Why not follow the example of our forefathers and use much of this good corn product? The first settlers of America learned from the Indians how to prepare the Indian corn for use. They removed the hulls from the dry grain by pounding it in a mortar with a pestle. The cracked corn they called by the Indian name "hominy." Hominy became one of their staple foods without which they would often have gone hungry. They cooked it in huge iron kettles hung over the blazing logs in the open fireplace.

They also learned to remove the germ and hull from the corn by boiling the grain with lye and then washing thoroughly. They sometimes called this product "hulled corn" but it is now more often called "lye hominy."

There are several kinds of hominy on the market. If you do not know how good they are, try them and find out, advises the United States department of agriculture.

The coarse hominy, samp, or pearl hominy.—This is much like the hominy the pioneers used. The grain is split to remove the germ, hulled and polished by machinery. It is much used, particularly in the central and eastern states. It is worth using everywhere. The fine hominy or hominy grits.—This is made by grinding the coarse hominy. Grits are excellent served as a vegetable much as rice is used. Grits are also used in many parts of the country as a breakfast food.

Lye hominy.—Lye hominy is made at home by many and also made commercially by boiling the grain in lye or potash until the germ will come out and then washing out the lye. In many places it may be bought in bulk, and is also sold canned. It may be dried for future use or canned at home.

All varieties of hominy are good nourishing food. Like wheat, rice, and other cereals they give both body fuel and body-building material at a comparatively low price. Let them have a larger place in your diet.

Author of "Blest Be the Tie."

The hymn known by its first line as "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" was written by Rev. Dr. John Fawcett, an English Baptist preacher, who was born in 1740 and died in 1817. He was noted as a religious worker and wrote many other good hymns, but none so famous and popular as this one, which has been used by different denominations. Tradition says that the author wrote it under a sort of religious inspiration which made him refuse to exchange the pastorate of a small provincial church for that of a strong and rich one in London. The hymn has been sung on many historical occasions as peculiarly expressive of Christian fellowship.

Eat Enough; No More.

The sane standard, "Eat enough food, and no more," rigidly followed, would reduce greatly food bills in many homes and, at the same time, tend to improve the physical condition of all members of the household, advises the United States department of agriculture. Some families take pride in serving lavish and overbountiful meals, and over-generous service of food. This leads inevitably to waste of food on the table and is a temptation to overeating, which often impairs health and efficiency.

Cravath's Grudge Justified—Benny Kauff Pulled Down His Long Fifty-Dollar Fly

Gavvy Cravath holds a well-defined grudge against Benny Kauff of the New York Giants. When a fellow virtually reaches right in a ball player's pocket and extracts 50 simoleons therefrom, he's no friend of said ball player. Benny Kauff didn't do that exactly, but he might just as well have done it. The alleged misappropriation happened in Philadelphia, the other day. Cravath, some wallpaper when he gets hold of the ball, crashed the sphere to right center on this particular day and the ball was headed straight for a big sign. As is well known, the reward for rapping this board is $50. No one in the park thought Kauff had a chance to intercept the speeding sphere, but that is just what Benny did. He got under it, braced himself against the sign and stretched both arms far above his head. He caught the pellet an inch from the fence.

Fiber Containers May Take Place of the Tin Fruit Cans.

The annual report of the department of commerce sets forth the dire need of tin cans and the efforts the government is making to conserve them. During the early days of last summer's campaign for the preservation of perishable fruits and vegetables, government experts tested the possibility of utilizing once used tin cans, but investigation proved the advisability of abandoning this plan in favor of "detinning" process, whereby most of the steel and tin is recovered for further use in manufacture. The government is now persuading factory owners to substitute paper or fiber containers for all non-perishable articles heretofore put up in tin. This, it is expected, will to a certain extent offset the tin cans shipped to the army in France. The balance of the loss will be made up by salvaging used cans.—Leslie's.

Tons of Free Seed Sent by Government the Past Spring.

To comparatively few of us has it ever occurred that the United States government is one of the world's largest buyers of garden and flower seed. The few ounces of seed carried to us by the postman give no impression of the acres upon acres of land devoted to their propagation, or the care taken in determining their fitness for planting. But these small envelopes represent tens of thousands of pounds of the best seed procurable.

It is illuminating to know that the aggregate weight of the free seed circulated from Washington this spring amounted to 499.06 tons, or, for the sake of juggling figures, 15,969,920 ounces. Of this amount it is also interesting to know, corn seed predominated, 350,000 pounds of it being mailed to various sections of the country. Machines are used which automatically proportion the seed by weight, fill the individual packages and seal them.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

MOTHERS TO BE

Should Read Mrs. Monyhan's Letter Published by Her Permission.

Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me so much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other expectant mothers. Before taking it, sometimes I suffered with neuralgia so badly that I thought I could not live, but after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was entirely relieved of neuralgia, I had gained in strength and was able to go around and do all my housework. My baby when seven months old weighed 19 pounds and I feel better than I have for a long time. I never had any medicine do me so much good."—Mrs. PEARL MONYHAN, Mitchell, Ind.

Good health during maternity is a most important factor to both mother and child, and many letters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., telling of health restored during this trying period by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE ALASKA PIONEER
A great many former residents of Alaska are now living in California. They often recall with pleasure the good old days in the North where men were accepted for their true worth, as men, instead of for the number of dollars they may have accumulated. Any of the old residents of Alaska, now in California, who want to keep informed of what is going on in their former Alaska home should send $3.00 to The Alaska Pioneer, in Ketchikan, Alaska, and the best and brightest monthly paper ever established in Alaska, will be sent for one year. Tommy Needham, Paul Stanhope, and Dave Harris are the men in charge of The Alaska Pioneer. Their names stand for ability, sincerity, and a square deal.

At a Disadvantage.
"Civilization has not done much for the American Indian."
"No," replied Broncho Bob. "I've often thought about how much better show the noble red man would have had if prohibition had been invented before America was discovered."

CALOMEL TODAY, SICK TOMORROW
Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

Appropriate Embellishments.
"So many of the young women wear summer furs," said Mrs. Cornstossel.
"It's all right," replied the farmer.
"If there's much more of this cool weather, I'm goin' down to the barn and dig up the sleighbells."

THE ONWARD MARCH of Bronchitis, and deep seated Coughs is arrested by Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. In those scrofulous conditions of the blood which invite Consumption; in severe, lingering Coughs, and Weak Lungs, which threaten you with this fatal disease, and when other help has failed—this medicine is a proved remedy.

As a blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and tonic it is sure to benefit. In all lingering Bronchial and Throat affections, and in every disease that can be reached through the blood, it never fails to benefit or cure. In tablet or liquid form. Tablets, 60c.

The machinery of the body needs to be well oiled, kept in good condition just as the automobile, steam engine or bicycle. Why should the human neglect his own machinery more than that of his horse or his engine? Yet most people do neglect themselves. Clean the system at least once a week with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.—Adv.

Whales and Porpoises Are Often Taken for Submarine By the Watchful Gun Crews.

There is peril in being a whale or a porpoise in the north Atlantic these days, according to Nelson Collins in the Century. If you are a whale, particularly a spouting whale, you are apt to be mistaken for a submarine; and if you are a porpoise, you are apt to be taken for a torpedo. There is many a shattered carcass and abashed gun crew. In the phosphorescence of even winter nights a porpoise just under the surface can make an experienced lookout have a moment's suspense. The line of white is a little narrow and a little high for a torpedo, but in the first moment a lookout isn't given to exact measurements. The white at bow and stern on a phosphorescent night is conspicuous evidence of a ship, though it is a question how plain it would be through a periscope at about its own level. From the decks of the ship itself or from the deck of an emerged submarine it flashes plain. If it could only be camouflaged along with the smoke. And on such a night in the zone there is the eerie sense of more than one submarine that has worked her way along in the white wake of a slow ship, keeping tab so through the night and waiting for dawn to sheer off and strike. That is why, as dark comes on, a destroyer is apt to drop back from the side of the ship and lurk along the wake, seeking its prey also. I remember one velvety black night. Suddenly a great white trail shot across our bow from port to starboard and just a few yards ahead. If a porpoise is too narrow to make a torpedo trail, this seemed too broad, but deep enough. It was the wake of a destroyer that had cut across in a hurry.

A FEW SMILES

Wise Mabel.
Louise, nine years old, asked her mother: "Where is pap going?"
"To a stag party," she replied.
"What is a stag party, mamma?"
Sister Mabel, seven years old, who had been listening with dignified attitude of superior wisdom, answered instantly: "It's where they stagger. Didn't you know?"

Preferred Richard.
It was the first time that Richard's father had seen "her," and they were talking things over.
"So my son has proposed to you," he said, "and you have accepted him? I think you might have seen me first."

She blushed sweetly as she replied: "I did, but I think I prefer Richard."

No Danger.
"I understand, Mrs. Grumpy, there was a great deal of vacillation in your family."
"Yes'm, but none of it ever took."

A Rational Conclusion.
"The Binkses must buy everything on the installment plan."
"What makes you think so?"
"I heard Jimmy Binks ask his father whether the new baby would be taken away if they couldn't keep up the payments."

Easy.
Wife—Your Aunt Maria is coming to visit us, but, really, I don't see how I can find time to entertain her.
Hub—Invite your Aunt Eliza and they will entertain each other telling about their diseases.

Fine.
"Is this machine automatic?"
"Absolutely. Needs no attention whatever. The agent says it will even pay for itself."

War Develops There Are Many Illiterates in U. S.

The war has, as Secretary Lane puts it in his letter to President Wilson and the chairman of the congress committees on education, "brought facts to our attention that are almost unbelievable" with respect to the prevalence of illiteracy in this country, observes the New York World.

Nearly 700,000 men of draft age cannot read or write in any language. There are over 4,600,000 illiterates above twenty years old or more. Illiterates above ten years of age—the common basis of reckoning—number 5,516,163.

Of an army so vast that, marching in pairs 25 miles a day, it would be two months passing the White House, as Mr. Lane figures, over 58 per cent are white and 1,500,000 are native-born whites. Immigration is by no means the sole factor in a condition that saps the economic as well as the mental resources of the country.

"An uninformed democracy is not a democracy." Secretary Lane asks the attention of congress for a bill forming a bureau of education for the eradication of adult illiteracy.

Profits and Prices

Profits may be considered from two angles:

- 1st—Their effect on prices;
- 2nd—As a return to investors.

When profits are small as compared with sales, they have little effect on prices.

Swift & Company's profits are only a fraction of a cent per pound on all products sold, and if eliminated entirely would have practically no effect on prices.

Swift & Company paid 10 per cent dividends to over 20,000 stockholders out of its 1917 profits. It also had to build extensions and improvements out of profits; to finance large stocks of goods made necessary by unprecedented requirements of the United States and Allied Governments; and to provide protection against the day of declining markets.

Is it fair to call this profiteering?

Swift & Company, U.S.A.

SUFFERING CATS! GIVE THIS MAN THE GOLD MEDAL

No humber! Any corn, whether hard soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

This drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon your tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted off with the fingers.

This drug freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. If your druggist don't have freezone have him order it for you.—Adv.

A Bad Start.

Bride—I'm so afraid people will find out that we're just married, that I've made Jack promise to treat me in public just as if he had no thought of any one but himself.

Mrs. Longwen—My dear, I adopted that plan when I was married, and my husband never got over it.

Cuticura for Sore Hands.

Soak hands on retiring in the hot sud of Cuticura Soap, dry and rub in Cuticura Ointment. Remove surplus Ointment with soft tissue paper. For free samples address, "Cuticura, Dept. X, Boston." At druggists and by mail, Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c.—Adv.

Greater Discrimination.

"You don't address me as 'Colonel' any more!"
"No, snh," replied the head waiter.
"In deshere war times titles is important. It takes mo' dan a two-bit tip foh a gemman to git hisse'f called even as much as 'Cap'n.'"

Very Likely.

"What do you think is the real mental attitude of the intellectual men toward frivolous, pretty girls?"
"I think its largely sentimental."

A Tribute To Little Warren Chauncey VanArsdell

A rare blossom has been transplanted from the shadows of earth to the sunlight of heaven. Altho not yet a year old, little Warren Chauncey had a very marked trait of character, that of an unusually loving disposition. From the earliest time of taking notice, he seemed to count everyone his friend and just loved everybody.

A robust body, marked 100 per cent perfect at a baby clinic, it came as a great shock to friends that he so quickly passed the borderland. After the disease went to the brain, the physician gave no hope of recovery. Patient and smiling to the last, he did not cry, gave a few little moans and sighs and, was gone to that One who loved him with an everlasting love, better than fondest of earthly parents.

Rev. Lloyd spoke most comfortingly from the words, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me", the music was tenderly appropriate and exquisite flowers in great profusion more than covered the little mound in Santa Clara cemetery.

Sign Up

In a drive for membership, inaugurated for the purpose of securing practically every producer in the State, The California Pryne and Apricot Growers, Inc., has added during the first week more than 1,000 acres in contracts.

In the San Joaquin valley region deliveries are about completed, and while the quantity of fruit handled has been about the same as in 1917, the amount of cash received is reported as nearly double. This condition is aiding the campaign and is pointed out as having justified the claim made by Hugh S. Hersman, Gilroy banker and business man, now a candidate for congress in the eighth district, who was chairman of the committee on organization and played a most important part in the work. He declared organization would prevent speculation and gambling in these staple products and bring higher prices to producers without increasing cost to the consumers.

Last year's business was upwards of $8,000,000. Inasmuch as the crops are moving in many sections, this year's cannot be estimated anywhere near accuracy for some weeks to come, but it is freely predicted that a new record will be made.

The membership is now 6,000. It is hoped to increase this number materially.

Dunham--McQueen

Miss Hazel Dunham and Private Donald McQueen of Camp Fremont were married at San Francisco Monday. Mrs. McQueen will probably remain here with her parents as Mr. McQueen expects to be moved elsewhere in a short time.

The announcement came as a surprise to their many friends whose best wishes are extended them at this happy time.

Importance of Vote at the Primary Election

Sec. 23 of the Direct Primary Law states that where there is but one person to be elected to any non-partisan office the candidate who receives the majority at the primary is the only one to be voted for in November. That is, he is really elected at the primary. It is, therefore, important that voters go to the polls on August 27th and express their preferences. It will save expense of printing names on ballots and do away with manipulating politics at the last minute. The primary election is the poor man's safeguard and while our boys are fighting for liberty abroad we can help them by voting for liberty here.

We Must Do It

Campbell's quota in the War-Savings stamp drive which starts next week is $63,655, including the districts immediately around, and of this amount more than 50 percent has been subscribed, leaving about $30,000 to be pledged or purchased between Aug. 12 and Aug. 19 to put Campbell "over the top".

Campbell is also in danger of having her "limit club" membership total passed.

Mrs. J. I. Pardee is driving a new Oakland.

Mrs. C. E. Day went to Oakland today for a visit with friends there and at San Francisco.

IF the flying retreat of the Crown Prince "Fun" Hohenzollern isn't affording him thrills enough with the Americans in France let him come over here and get into the political mele. It's warming up in these parts.

THE Crown Prince is now leading his mighty army, the first time in history of this war. He has formerly been at the rear but that is now to close to the pursuing enemy, the French and Americans. He makes a good leader in a retreat.

THERE is one thing that every man who is getting good wages or a bigger income these war times should bear in mind. The easy dollar will go just as far in paying debts as the dollar that used to be harder to get in the past and will certainly be harder to get "after some time be past."

SOME one has pointed out that after every German reverse or retreat a Hindenburg victory has been rolled up to balance accounts, at least in the eyes of the Germans. Now the allies are on the watch for a big drive on some weak spot and are strengthening every point. These German victories may have served to sop the mind earlier in the war but things are in such a condition that the words of victory will not appease the pangs of hunger. The soldiers in retreat are gathering the grain enroute and sending it home to feed the munition workers.

"First Fighters" South

U. S. M. C., Fort Crockett.

Galveston, Texas, July 31, 1918.

Dear Folks at Home,

We arrived at Galveston Monday morning, and believe me, it was a dirty looking bunch of Marines that piled off the train. We had been gathering dirt ever since we left Los Angeles, and would have been much worse if we had not had the pleasure of a swim at Tucson, Arizona.

We sure had a close shave in R R wreck between Maricopa and Tucson. The train ahead of ours had stopped and hooked on two empty Pullmans and a freight car and were just pulling out when our train crashed into them from behind. Our engineer managed to slow down, and break our cars loose from the engine so we did not get so severe a jolt as we would have, otherwise. The engine ran about ten feet into the freight; and the two Pullmans partly telescoped. If it had not been for those three cars on the rear of the other train the passengers on the other train would have been smashed up a bit. The freight was loaded with milk, meat and cantaloupes and we had quite a feed when they spilled out. The thing happened about two o'clock in the morning and when the train stopped with a big jerk our heads went bang against the ends of our berths. The Pullman conductor was hurt but the marines got off each with a bunch of bumps on his head.

Arizona and New Mexico are sure dry hot, and dirty, and what we have seen of Texas is not much better. We ran into a sand storm in New Mexico and we had a genuine thunder storm last night. It was sure fine to have some rain, because the sand blows all through one, and raises the devil with our guns.

It was a pretty hot and dirty trip coming down but I enjoyed it, because I saw so many new things and every body along the way treated us royally especially the Red Cross at Yuma and Tucson. We had a prince of a Captain, who let us off at all the big towns and some small dirty dumps. The train ran along the edge of Salton Sea for about twenty miles and crosses the Colorado and Rio Grande rivers so you see I am very well traveled. Gee, I don't see why any one wants to live in New Mexico or Texas—Nothing but sand, rocks, red hot weather and bum water with alkali and tastes rotten.

We sweat to beat the devil all the time, one blanket is too much at night. We are living in real army style,—no floors in our tents, but that makes it easier for us as we don't have to sweep them. We eat out of our Aluminum mess kits, but the chow is good and the cooks are generous in dealing it out. As soon as we qualify on the rifle range we go to the fort about a mile away, and train a while longer. We may go direct to France or we may go to Virginia for further trench fighting.

I am not going into the Officers' Training Camp. All the bunch here will be shipped across within a reasonably short time, while I tried for a commission, the scrap would probably end before I get there, and don't think I am the only one who feels that way. There are lots of college men here who don't give a darn about anything but getting across the pond. A fellow feels quite different about such things after he has been in the service a while than he did before he enlisted.

They don't have showers here but there is a fine beach near the range, and the water is swell. I have not seen Galveston yet as we are on another island.

This is sure the "Sunny" South. We had to walk knee deep through negroes in San Antonio. It seems to me that there are more Negroes and Mexicans than Whites.

Until next time
Jim.

I am a candidate for re-election.

I have tried to be strictly impartial in arrests, have been controlled by the spirit of compromise, where minors are the delinquents, and have tried to obey the law as it definies the duties of my office.

I thank you for your support in the past, and I hope for it in the August and November elections of 1918.
